

Côte d Ivoire folk bridge

Overview

Soaring over 100 meters high and spanning 630 meters across Cocody Bay, the Alassane Ouattara Bridge boasts a distinctive cable-stayed design, marking a first-of-its-kind achievement in both Côte d'Ivoire and West Africa. From the rise of seaports to West Africa's largest tourism hub, Abidjan, Côte d'Ivoire's largest metropolis and economic capital, showcases a unique blend of distinctive architectural layouts, bustling streets, and picturesque landscapes. Abidjan, Côte d'Ivoire, 17 August 2023: In a momentous event that marked a milestone in Côte d'Ivoire's development, H. Alassane Ouattara, the President of Côte d'Ivoire, officiated the inauguration of the highly anticipated Cocody Bridge on Saturday, August 12th, 2023. Côte d'Ivoire: Abidjan's 4th bridge eases traffic, connects communities, and transforms lives. Financed with €566 million from the African Development Bank Group, Abidjan's 4th Bridge is improving mobility between Yopougon and Plateau, connecting economic hubs, and creating. Impeccably dressed in traditional attire and a fedora that confer authority befitting a descendant of a long royal lineage, Ekra Kobenan sits straight-backed in a chair reserved for the traditional chief of the town of Prikro, in central Côte d'Ivoire. On Wednesday 10 January, just days before the 2023 Africa Cup of Nations football tournament opens, (2023 AFCON), the Ivorian Prime Minister, Robert Beugré Mambé, opened Abidjan's fourth bridge, the "Y4" bypass, and the urban highways of Civil Prison and Dabou respectively, all built with funding.
